ORDER

Sub.: Deposit of cash security by various categories of industrial consumers.

Various associations of Industries have been representing against the existing provisions of cash security from industries. The matter has been considered in detail and the following decisions have been taken:-

1. Small (SIP) & Medium (MIP) consumers

- (i) SIP consumers, whose average monthly bill is Rs. 10,000/- or more and MIP consumers, whose average monthly bill is Rs. 25,000/- or more, may opt for depositing the energy bill on fortnightly billing basis. In such a case the requirement of security deposit shall be equivalent to only one and a half months (1.5 months) in cash instead of the existing provision of two months cash security.
- (ii) The fortnightly bills will be sent alongwith regular monthly energy bill, on the basis of consumption of previous month to be charged for net energy rates plus rate of fuel surcharge only. The date of issue of this fortnightly bill will be 15th of the month and shall be payable as per normal grace period. The payment made towards fortnightly bill shall be adjusted in the main monthly bill of the next month.
- (iii) Such consumers shall execute a special agreement to the effect that if they fail to deposit fortnightly bill and/or regular monthly bill by the prescribed due date(s), as the case may be, their connection could be disconnected immediately without the requirement of seven days notice prescribed under section 24(1) of Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

2. Large Industrial Consumers

Under this category in addition to the existing provisions of depositing security prescribed in the erstwhile Board's Order COMML-530 dated 19.7.2000, an option would be given to such consumers, whose monthly consumption is Rs. 10 lacs or more, to opt for depositing the energy bills in the following manner:-

- (i) Such units shall deposit the fortnightly bill by 23rd of the month in cash. The due date to deposit by cheque shall be 20th of the month.
- (ii) Such consumers shall deposit the regular energy bill on 8th of the billing month in cash. The due date to deposit by cheque shall be 5th of the month.
- (iii) Such consumers shall execute a supplementary agreement to the effect that if they fail to deposit fortnightly bill and/or regular monthly energy bill on the due date(s), as the case may be, in the manner prescribed above, their connection could be disconnected immediately, without the requirement of seven days notice prescribed under Section 24(1) of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.
- (iv) In the above cases the requirement of security shall be limited to one month consumption in cash only.

The above order shall come into force with immediate effect. Such facility shall only be available to the consumers having no outstanding dues. However, in case any consumer under Small, Medium & Large Industrial categories who, after opting for this arrangement, defaults in making payment as stated herein above, besides disconnection, this facility will be withdrawn and such consumer will be required to pay two months security in cash and will be billed on monthly basis. The formats for special agreement/supplementary agreement are enclosed herewith.
